While many studies have discussed bank stability but I did not find papers discussing banks related to a macroeconomic structure specifically. We conducted research which has a goal to find the impact of macroeconomic activities on the conditions of banking stability. Macroeconomic activity is reflected in movements in economic growth, exchange rates, inflation, trade balance, and monetary policy. While the condition of banking stability is reflected in several dimensions of banking risk such as Non-Performing Loans (NPL), Loan to Deposit Ratio (LDR), and Return on Assets (ROA). We came up with results that a decrease in production and trade capacity can cause the NPL ratio to increase, and the LDR and ROA ratio falls. Also, an important finding in this study is that monetary policy tightening in the form of a central bank rate has a relatively significant impact on the increase in the NPL ratio. While tightening monetary policy the central bank rate is not significant to changes in the LDR and ROA ratios. The possibility of this is due to the transmission of monetary policy the bank rate has a long lag or long transmission to LDR and ROA, so that it has a relatively long-term impact. We believe that the findings of this study are relevant to the scope of your journal and will be of interest to its readership. I have provided tables, figures, and visualization summarizing the findings. This manuscript has not been published or presented elsewhere in part or in entirety and is not under consideration by another journal. There are no conflicts of interest to declare. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Dr. Khamdan Rifa'i

Research Trentz, which is now the owner company of Quality - Access to Success, requires language and content editing of all the submissions before publishing the accepted articles. This service, which costs $400, is definitely essential to complete the process of publication. This does not mean that Quality - Access to Success is a paid journal, which accepts all submissions for $400. It is just opposite. Most submissions are rejected in the pre-editorial stage if they do not meet the academic quality criteria of Research Trentz.

Please, let us know if you may wish to continue your submission process.

Your prompt response is highly appreciated.

Dear Mr İsmail Hakki Mirici

Kind regards,

I have submitted an article entitled "THE IMPACT OF MACROECONOMIC STRUCTURES FOR THE BANKING STABILITY IN INDONESIA" to Quality - Access to Success. On September 16, 2022, a response has been received, in accordance with the regulations of the journal Quality - Access to Success. They are asked to review other articles. I have completed the review task.

I hope to get a Letter of Acceptance (LOA) soon from the article I submitted. I need the LOA as one of the requirements for the professor's submission. I am willing to meet all the requirements, both the task of reviewing and additional fees.

Thank you for considering this request.
